GALEN MANES LEAVES NOTE

"AFRAID I'LL FAIL IN LIFE," SUICIDE WRITES.

SERVICES TOMORROW

Youth Will Be Buried Near Mother's Grave At Blanchard, Ia., Was Sophomore In High School.

An examination of the contents of the stomach of Galen Manes, was made at the State Teachers College here today and carbolic acid in large quantities was found, Dr. F. C. Wallis, coroner, stated late today.

Galen Manes, 19 years old, son of Frank Manes of Burlington Junction, who committed suicide on his father's farm by taking carbolic acid yesterday morning, left a note placed in one of the straps at the top of the Ford roadster he had been driving. It read:

"Don't worry. I'll be all right. When you find this it will all be over. Nobody is to blame, but myself. I am a failure in school and a failure in other things and I am afraid I'll be a failure in life."

The funeral services will be held at the Methodist Church at Burlington Junction at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Burial will be at Blanchard, Ia. The Rev. J. Howard Thompson will conduct the funeral. Galen's mother also is buried at Blanchard.

Galen had been out of school at various times in his life and the fact that he lacked only a few days of his twentieth birthday while he was only a sophomore is thought to have discouraged him. The statement yesterday that he was a senior was an error.

The boy lived, with his father and brother, George, at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Manes, near Burlington Junction. There is a sister, Bernice, also. The boy had lived at Burlington Junction seven or eight years.

Galen got the poison at a drug store at Burlington Junction at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, it was learned.

A rumor, declared unfounded, was that depression over a disappointing love affair Galen had had with a Burlington Junction girl might have played a part in the youth's suicide.

It was reported at first that the youth died from injuries received when kicked by one of the untamed horses or mules in his father's barn, where he had gone to feed the animals.

Galen and his brother were members of the Burlington Junction basketball team. The boys were on the team that played in the county tournament at Elmo Saturday.

"Galen was a sophomore and he was rather old compared to the other students in the class, but he was an average student and he was not failing in any of his subjects," declared H. B. Rutledge, superintendent of schools at Burlington Junction where the boy was a student.

"Galen's idea that he was a failure was an illusion. He was perhaps, somewhat odd in his ways, but he was well-liked by everybody. He was a good chap. He was retarded in school. His mother's illness and death caused some delay and he was older than others when he entered school."

The pall bearers at the funeral will be high school students. The high school will be dismissed for the services.

"Galen was in good spirits at basketball practice Monday night. He was always on time and always was in a good humor," Coach Claud Thompson of Burlington Junction High School said today.

Farm Southwest of Arkoe Brings $25,000

Mr and Mrs. C. L. Owens have sold lot nine block two, seventh addition to Skidmore to Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Barrett for $1,100, according to a warranty deed filed with the recorder today.

Other warranty deeds were: Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hooper of Maitland to Ransom C. Shields, 160 acres, about five miles southwest of Arkoe, for $25,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Solomon H. Davenport to Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Troth, eighty acres, near the Andrew County line, nine miles southeast of Graham for $10,400.

Green Township Board to Meet.

The Green Township board will meet at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, in Quitman, and will pass upon road dragging bills.

Choose Profession, Then the College

Supt. L. E. Ziegler Gives Advice to Members of Hi-Y Club at High School.

Choose your profession and then choose your college," was the suggestion of L. E. Ziegler, superintendent of schools, in a talk to the members of the Hi-Y Club of the Maryville High School, the theme of his talk being, "Choosing Your College."

Superintendent Ziegler declared that boys and girls have made grave mistakes in forming their careers and selecting their places of education, due to lack of knowledge what they were best fitted for. Colleges, he said, should be selected that will meet the need of the student in training for his life work. Study over the courses offered, the standing of the institution and the record of the faculty, he urged.

"There is no need of a good farmer becoming a preacher," the speaker declared.

COUNTY FARM REPORT MADE

FIGURES SHOW INSTITUTION PARTLY SELF SUPPORTING.

RECEIPTS ARE $5,484

Year's Expenses Total $11,000.53, Says Superintendent.—24 Patients Now at Infirmary.

Receipts from products sold at the County Infirmary, located west of Maryville, equaled nearly half of the expenses and provided some improvements during 1926, according to a report made by the superintendent, George Brown, to the county court today.

Expenses were listed at $11,000.53 from January 1, 1926 to January 1, 1927, and the receipts were $5,484.02, Mr. Brown's figures showed. There are twenty-four patients at the county farm at present, he said. An inventory taken March 1, as of January 1, showed $6,464, so that the inventory and receipts more than equalled the expenses.

Of the receipts during the year, $4,739.52 was from hogs sold on nearby markets. Hogs from the county farm are readily bought by livestock men at the markets and Mr. Brown's pigs very rarely fail to top the market. The remainder of the $5,484.02 receipts, or $744.50, was taken in from farm and garden produce sold by Mr. Brown.

The expenses for the farm included $300 repairs on motors, engines and equipment and $800 for improvements, including a garage and smokehouse.

The inventory listed the following: Four horses, $325; six milk cows, $300; twelve head of cattle, $360; one bull, $60; twenty-eight brood sows, $1,400; two boars, $75; eighty head of fall pigs, $1,000; 145 chickens, $145; two sets of work harness, $50; seven tons of hay, $160; one ton of straw, $9; two wagons, $40; one rack and chassis, $30; one manure spreader, $75; two walking ploughs, $20; one corn drill, $10; one lister, $10; 1,800 bushels of corn, $1,200; one mower, $50; one hay rake, $10; one garden plough, $5; tools and outfit, $15; one engine at pump, $5; one Ford truck, $200; one grindstone, $5; 100 bushels of potatoes and fruit, $125; and twenty hogs, (meat killed), $600.

Robert Moody Trial at Rock Port Today

Maryville Man Is Charged With Driving Motor Vehicle While He Was Intoxicated.

The case against Robert Moody of Maryville, indicted by a grand jury on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while in an intoxicated condition, was being tried today in the circuit court at Rock Port on a change of venue from this county.

Moody was defended by Virgil Rathbun of Maryville and the prosecution made by Geo. P. Wright, prosecuting attorney of Nodaway County, who was accompanied to Rock Port by Sheriff L. B. Campbell.

Those subpoenaed by the state as witnesses were William Trullinger and Frank McKee, night policemen here; Cabel Childress, constable of Polk township; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Roelofson and Michael Maher.

The offense alleged to have been committed by Moody was stated by the grand jury as occurring October 10, 1926.

TO HELP PLAN THE PLANTING

OUTLOOK MEETING HERE MONDAY IS TO ADVISE FARMERS.

PROGRAM IS MAPPED

Corn and Hog Prospects to Occupy Most of Time Here.—278 Invitations Out.

I. Purpose and Scope of the Agriculture Outlook.
II. General Agricultural Situation.
(a) Domestic demand, foreign demand, agricultural credit, farm labor and equipment.
III. Corn and hog outlook.
IV. Beef cattle and sheep outlook.
V. Dairy outlook.
VI. Poultry and egg outlook.
VII. Horse and mule outlook.
VIII. Hay, oats and feed outlook.

The forgoing is the program of an all-day conference of the leading farmers, bankers, editors and farm loan men, to be held here in the circuit courtroom of the courthouse next Monday, March 14, conducted by specialists of the Extension department of the College of Agriculture, University of Missouri.

The purpose of this "Outlook Meeting," is pointed out by the United States Department of Agriculture:

"It is designed to give farmers, prior to planting and breeding time, information as to what probable conditions will be when their products are ready to market. The statement on every commodity is based on all available information which will be of assistance to producers in so planning their production programs and balancing their different lines of production as to obtain the greatest returns and to avoid so far as possible the overproduction or underproduction of any commodity."

Specialists in their own lines of work will be here on March 14 to meet with the farmers and to talk over with them productions that should be stressed in Nodaway County and what lines are particularly adapted to the county in relation to the economic conditions prevalent this year.

The men to appear on the program are Prof. G. B. Thorne, department of agricultural economics, Missouri College of Agriculture; H. C. Hensley, extension specialist in marketing; D. C. Wood, extension specialist in farm management, and E. A. Logan, agricultural statistician of the U. S. department of agriculture, with headquarters at Jefferson City. J. Ross Fleetwood, county agricultural agent, will introduce the speakers.

The meeting should do much to aid the farmers in their planning for this year's crops if all invited attend. Two-hundred seventy-eight from this county have been sent invitations, and Mr. Fleetwood said today several delegates from Andrew and Holt County undoubtedly would be here.

He said the topics likely to be given most attention will be the corn and hog outlook, with beef cattle, dairying, and poultry and eggs following close in line.

15 Counties Enter Spelling Contest

Davies, Grundy and Atchison Are Among Last to Report; Visitors Will Arrive Tonight.

Additional entries and changes for the Northwest Missouri Spelling Contest which will be held at the State Teachers College here tomorrow are:

Davies County: rural, Henry Carter; elementary, Margaret Greenwood; high school, Mildred Yontsey.

Ray County: rural, LaVeta Mosoner; elementary, Mary Louise Owen; high school, Emma Stigall.

Platte: rural, Catherine Chinn; elementary, Georgia Wilson; high school, Marjorie Risk.

Buchanan: high school, Dorothy Timberlake.

DeKalb: elementary, Lillian Lyons.

Atchison: High school, Pauline Hackett.

Grundy: Rural, Mildred Berry; elementary, Louise Cartnell; high school, Kathleen Stoms.

The contestants will be guests of the teachers college while they are in Maryville. The first visitors arrive tonight.

Fifteen counties have entered the contest.

450 Students Enroll for Spring Quarter

Many Preparing Enrollment Slips Late This Afternoon—Registration Today Mostly Sophomores.

In the neighborhood of 450 students had enrolled for the spring quarter at the State Teachers College by 3 o'clock this afternoon. At this hour a large number of students were still preparing their slips, and it was estimated that the total registration would be much larger.

The registration today was confined to sophomores and upperclassmen. Yesterday 190 freshmen matriculated for the quarter. Class work for the first-year students started today, and other students will attend their classes tomorrow.

COURT KEEPS COUNTY AGENT

APPROPRIATION OF $2,000 FOR 1 YEAR IS AGREED UPON.

HIS SERVICES FOR ALL

Judges of County Court Make Appropriation Late Yesterday—Is the Same As In Past Years.

Services of an agricultural extension agent for Nodaway County were definitely assured when the county court late yesterday afternoon appropriated $2,000.

The appropriation is the same as has been made in the past and insures continuation of agricultural extension work in Nodaway County for 1927.

Roy Lippman, spokesman for the Farm Bureau, said today that the services of J. Ross Fleetwood, present agent, are open to everybody in the county, as in the past. He added that later on a membership campaign undoubtedly would be started.

With the present status of affairs, there will be approximately $5,050 available for the maintenance of the extension agent's office and mileage, the $2,000 appropriated by the county court, $1,550 from the state and federal government, and $1,500 from the Farm Bureau memberships.

Mayor Garrett Files Again as Candidate

His Entry the First in City Primary to Be Held March 22.—Saturday Last Filing Day.

For the third time on March 9, W. O. Garrett this morning filed his candidacy for re-election as mayor of Maryville. His intentions to be a candidate at the city primaries on Tuesday, March 22, were filed with Mrs. Merle Cooper Smith, city clerk, at the city hall.

This is the fourth time Mr. Garrett has entered the race for the chief executive office of the city and on the three other occasions he was the successful candidate.

Mr. Garrett was the first this year to file for any of the city offices, to be voted on this spring.

Saturday March 12, will be the last day for filing for any of the city offices. The council will meet Saturday evening at an adjourned meeting to name the judges for the primary and designate the polling places.

Mr. Garrett made it known he was asking for re-election on his past record.

Government Rests in Sinclair Trial

Judge in Contempt Proceedings Dismisses Jury Until Tomorrow Morning.

Washington, March 9.—The government today rested its case against Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil magnate and sportsman, charged with contempt of the senate.

The charge grew out of the famous Senate oil investigation, when Sinclair refused to answer committee questions.

Upon convening court this afternoon Junge Hitt excused the jury until tomorrow morning, warning the jurymen to "keep to yourselves."

Hopkins May Have a New Fire Truck

Members of the town board of Hopkins held a meeting Monday night, when the members considered the purchase of a fire truck. It is likely that a truck will be purchased, a member of the board stated today.

WOLF DRIVE IS A SUCCESS

RAVENWOOD HUNTERS BAG ONE ANIMAL TODAY.

ON M'MULLEN'S FARM

Another Hunt to Be Held Friday at Riley Pasture, Southwest of Ravenwood.

A wolf hunt which got results was staged this morning near Ravenwood, with about 250 hunters taking part. One large gray wolf was shot.

At the close of the hunt, it was announced that another and larger one, over a different territory, would be held Friday morning, and sportsmen from Maryville and other parts of the county are invited to participate.

The drive this morning covered about four square miles and centered upon the McMullen pasture, one and one-half miles southeast of Ravenwood. The west line of the human square was formed at the railroad track west of the McMullen pasture and extended south to the township line. On the south the hunters formed along the township line and on the east along the county line, north to the Needles road. The north line then went west to the railroad.

The wolf was started north of the McMullen pasture and was driven ahead of the advancing cordon of men into the pasture. Here he attempted to break the line and was shot by four or more of the hunters. Those known to have fired shots and therefore claimants to the honor of the kill were Fay Casteel, Bud Lawson, John Kirkbride and Clark Fryar.

Friday's hunt will finish at the Riley pasture, southwest of Ravenwood, it was announced by W. H. Craig. The west line will commence at the Wilderman corner, four miles west of Ravenwood on the state road toward Maryville, and will extend south two miles, where the south line will commence and extend as far east as the Platte river. The east line will follow the river north to the state road, and the road will be the north line.

All persons intending to participate in the next hunt are asked to be on the line by 8:30 a. m., so that the drive may start promptly at 9 o'clock. Shotguns may be used, but no rifles. Dogs will be used after the pasture is reached.

Those on the different sides are asked to "take their time" after reaching the fence of the pasture and not to cross until the other lines have closed in.

The residents of the Ravenwood vicinity can care for the north and east sides, it was stated, and it is suggested that visitors take the south and west sides. Captains will be stationed there to distribute the men.

Further information about the hunt may be obtained from Mr. Craig or William Holtman.

Kellogg and Others Sued for $5,500,000

Self-Styled Immigration Consultant Charges Conspiracy Against His Business.

Washington, March 9.—Secretary Kellogg, American Consul-General Carleton B. Hurst, Foreign Service Officer Coert Du Bois, and American Consuls Arthur C. Frost and Edward Caffery were sued today for $5,500,000 by H. Ely Goldsmith, of New York.

Goldsmith, self-styled consultant in immigration matters, charges Kellogg and the others formed a conspiracy to keep him from conducting his business and by neglecting their duties in issuing passports caused him to lose money.

God and You

A LENTEN MEDITATION
By The Rev. Charles Stelzle

God is Love.

He loves the world, but His love is personal and individual.

To love means to have a desire for another's good.

There are some ardent souls who have a strong desire to become the Lord's high executioners.

But God desires to save the world not to condemn it.

He sent Jesus into the world as a messenger of Love.

This was the supreme manifestation of God's love to the world.

Oil Warehouses Down in Japan Earthquake

American Company Is Heavy Loser.—Only One American in Death List of 2,000.

Washington, March 9.—Destruction of Standard Oil Co. warehouses near Kobe, in the Japanese earthquake, was reported to the State Department by Consul Dickober. Dickober confirmed press reports that Miss Jessie Glenn Schultz, a passenger of the S. S. California was the only known American killed.

He estimated the total death list at 2,000 with unestimated thousands homeless.

"There was no serious damage at Kobe or Kyoto but several small towns and villages on the Japan sea coast near Maizuru, were reported destroyed," the consul said.

PAINTER ROAD BILL PASSES

SENATE ADOPTS MEASURE FOR CONNECTING HIGHWAYS.

BUS BILL IS IMPROVED

Both Houses of Legislature Now Have Regulatory Measures.—May License Loan Sharks.

Jefferson City, March 9.—The Painter bill, authorizing creation of county highway commissions to lay out systems of roads connecting the principal highways in the various counties of the state was passed by the senate today.

Introduced by Senator William R. Painter of Carroll county, the bill empowers the county courts to appoint such commissions, consisting of four members each.

The commissions would be authorized to lay out not more than 100 miles of connecting roads in each county and the work would be under the supervision of the state highway commission.

Bus Bill Reported in House.

Jefferson City, March 9.—A bill putting motor bus lines under the jurisdiction of the public service commission, but not including the busses of the Kansas City Public Service Co., has been reported favorably by the roads and highways committee of the house.

The measure was drafted and introduced in the house in the fear that a similar bill pending in the senate would fail of passage.

The house bill provides a schedule of fees ranging from $40 to $230. The fees in the senate bill are from $50 to $1,000.

The senate bill, as amended and engrossed, excludes Kansas City, but leaves St. Louis within the provisions of the measure.

Both bills carry the convenience and necessity provision empowering the commission to determine where the bus lines may be established.

The senate bill now faces final passage in that body.

House Shows Human Side.

Jefferson City, March 9.—The sympathetic human side of the house was revealed last night when it approved an appropriation of $2,000 for the relief of Miss Margaret Golden of Springfield, who became insane a year ago while employed in the state insurance department.

Representative O. J. Page, Republican floor leader, presented the woman's claim and informed the house that she is now in the state hospital at Nevada.

Loan Shark Bill Passes.

Jefferson City, March 9.—The Senate today passed the Casey bill designed to curb activities of loan sharks.

This bill provides that firms engaged in lending money in amounts of $300 or less must obtain a license from the state finance commissioner and must furnish a bond of $1,000.

The license is fixed at $150.

House Engrosses Bill.

Jefferson City, March 9.—The house of representatives today, by an overwhelming vote, ordered engrossment of the bill to exempt from taxation bills receivable. Engrossment of a similar bill was voted by the Senate yesterday without opposition, and the action by the house today indicates one of the measures ultimately will pass both houses and will be sent to governor Sam A. Baker for approval.

COOLIDGE TO COME WEST

A VACATION SITE SOON TO BE SELECTED.

CALLED GOOD POLITICS

President's Decision to Cross Mississippi May Allay Anti-Eastern Feeling.

Washington, March 9.—An agent for President Coolidge will go west shortly to pick a vacation site for him—and indications are it will be the Black Hills of South Dakota, Estes Park, Colorado, or the lake region of Minnesota.

Fifty palatial estates and ranches, from the Great Lakes to the Pacific coast, have been offered by community organizations and individuals as summer white houses for what will be the first vacation ever to be spent by a President west of the Mississippi river.

Political friends of the President have been urging selection of a western site for his vacation, claiming it might hurt him politically to remain always in the East. Mr. Coolidge has traveled very little west of the Mississippi since entering the White House, and the politicians believe it might aid him, should he decide to seek re-election.

Especially is this true since the recent party disturbances over the veto of the McNary-Haugen farm price stabilization bill, although it is pointed out that Mr. Coolidge, as long ago as last summer, talked of spending his 1927 vacation in the West.

Many western Republicans have deluged him with invitations. Within the last few days he has personally surveyed, them although he has not yet definitely determined on a site.

No Protectorate in Nicaragua Planned

Assurances Given Senate Committee By U. S. State Department, Borah Announces.

Washington, March 9.—The United States has no intention of intervening to establish a protectorate over Nicaragua, the State Department informed the Senate foreign relations committee, in secret session, just before Congress adjourned.

One American had been shot in the head during a bombardment but had not been killed, according to hearings made public today by Chairman Borah.

The department professed not to be entirely certain that no lives had been sacrificed, but the Navy department said today there had been no military fatalities, although four deaths from natural causes had been reported.

Dislike Proposed Loan.

Washington, March 9.—Administration officials today showed little enthusiasm over reported efforts of President Diaz of Nicaragua to secure an American loan of several hundred thousand dollars.

This government probably will take no action to prevent Diaz from securing money in New York for essential national expenditures, but large scale developments of Nicaragua on American capital would be more opportune after a stable peace than at present, the officials believe.

Officials hold, hovewer, the matter is primarily one for decision of New York bankers, rather than for the administration.

Co-Ed Bank Robber to Prison 30 Days

Pretty South Dakota Girl Pleads Guilty and Plea for Leniency Is Granted.

Vermilion, S. D., March 9.—Comely Marian Meyers, University of South Dakota co-ed who attempted to rob a bank in order to complete her education, was sentenced to thirty days in the penitentiary today.

The young woman pleaded guilty to attempting to rob the First National Bank of Vermilion.

Leniency was asked of the court for her and was granted in the judge's short sentence.

THE CASE OF REED vs. REED.

The verdict in the case of Reed vs. Reed, in the court of public opinion, is against the Senator from Pennsylvania. The meat in the question was whether corruption and crookedness in Pennsylvania politics should be further exposed and corrected or whether it should be covered up. It was whether the vote of the citizenship should be counted as voted to suit the big city bosses.

Mr. Reed of Pennsylvania took the side against the public in order to protect Vare and to secure the Vare support for himself in the next campaign and, in doing so, he chose to stop the wheels of legislation and make a helpless, useless thing of the United States senate under its rules, and to let all the important business of the senate go to defeat.

After the public has paid millions of dollars to support both houses of congress in initiating, considering, perfecting and bringing legislation up to the final stages of enactment, then one man with a small minority is able to throw it all into the discard by denying the majority the privilege of final consideration or a vote on important legislation.

Mr. Reed of Missouri is not always right but he was on the right side of the question in this case and he had the majority of the senate and the majority of the American people with him.

WHAT IS AMERICANISM?

A group of "patriotic organizations" which is preparing to meet in Washington soon and give the world a precise definition of "Americanism" has a job on its hands.

It will be necessary first to decide whether Americanism means what America is, or what it used to be, or what it ought to be. Here is a chance for three different definitions, each of which would be a problem in itself, and each of which might satisfy only limited groups.

Yet it is doubtless desirable to come to some agreement, if possible. How can anybody be sure he is a "100 per cent American" unless he is told what constitutes Americanism?

Few outside of that Washington conference will have the hardihood to attempt a definition. But anyone may suggest a process tending to clarify the subject a little and make eventual agreement on a definition less impossible. So here goes:

Suppose these patriotic Noah Websters start with the Declaration of Independence, probably the most characteristically American of all our national documents. Suppose they added the Constitution of the United States, with special emphasis on the first ten Amendments constituting the "Bill of Rights," and with due attention paid to the Thirteenth Amendment prohibiting slavery and the Nineteenth enfranchising women and the proposed Twentieth Amendment, intended to Americanize our child labor. Suppose they then added Washington's Farewell Address and Lincoln's Gettysburg speech and his two inaugural addresses, and boiled down the mixture. Something definite may come out of it.

The residual definition, we venture to say, would stress two things, Liberty and Tolerance, rather more than the things that some of our "hundred per centers" have been inclined to stress in these latter years.

A CHEER FOR McADAM.

The process by which big stones were laid for a road foundation, smaller ones poured into the interstices, still smaller ones into the smaller holes then left, and at length pebbles or sand to fill the smallest holes and make a strong and resilient fabric is called "macadamizing" a road. The word comes from the name of Sir John L. McAdam who worked it out. Applying that and other sound principles to the building of roads in his native Scotland and England as far back as 100 years ago, he was considered so much a benefactor that the British Government rewarded him with a gift of 10,000 pounds.

This method is still used as a base for bricks and concrete on many of the newest roads, and is used alone with great satisfaction in many places which have less hard traffic.

Perhaps in this centennial year of the macadam road the story may be told once more of a banquet at which Sir Walter Scott was guest of honor.

McAdam rose to propose his health saying: "Here's to Sir Walter Scott, the Colossus of Literature!"

Sir Walter jumped to his feet and proposed the next toast: "Here's to Sir John McAdam, the Colossus of Rhodes!"

One may spell the giant's name as one will, the word was no less apt. Sometimes we think all progress has been confined to the last few decades. But "there were giants in those days," too. And the influence of McAdam was not only felt in Great Britain but he went into Italy and made Italy internationally famous for her roads and spread the seeds of road improvement throughout all Europe.

It's queer how many people think "diet" means not eating.

What Other Editors Say

WHAT CRIME COSTS.

According to Mark O. Prentiss, who organized the National Crime Commission, the biggest bill paid by the people of the United States is that paid for crime. He estimates it at $13,000,000,000.

This, says Mr. Prentiss, is more money each year than we loaned all Europe in the war. It is more than all our agricultural crops are worth. He estimates that police cost the nation $1,000,000,000 a year and criminal justice costs three billions. Transportation thefts are a half-billion, as are thefts from warehouses and investments in fraudulent securities. Close behind these is the cost of fraudulent bankruptcies, which he estimated at $40,000,000. Embezzlements amount to $150,000,000, worthless checks to $120,000,000, and forgeries to $100,000,000. Robbing the mails, the most dangerous occupation in which our criminals can engage, is so inexpensive by comparison as to make the whole point. It costs annually only $10,000,000.

There may be something else to say. If so, what is it?—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

WHY LESSER NEWSPAPERS FAIL.

A news item yesterday invites attention to a process that has been going on rapidly in recent years—the weeding out of the lesser newspapers. The item told of the absorption of the Cleveland Times by the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

For many years the Leader was the foremost newspaper in Cleveland. Then the Plain Dealer came to the front. The Leader declined, the owners finally refused to carry the loss longer, and the Plain Dealer took it over. The Times was established to take the Leader's place. Now it has disappeared.

The same history is being repeated throughout the country. The St. Louis Republic, after an existence of more than a century, finally went under and was merged with the Globe-Democrat. The Des Moines Capital recently went to its successful competitor, the Register. New York City is strewn with the wrecks of newspapers that could not maintain themselves against the established papers. The Globe, the Mail and Express, the Sun, the Herald, to mention only the most conspicuous, were taken over by competitors or were discontinued.

In Chicago the case of the old Record and Herald, combined as the Record-Herald, became famous. Approximately 25 million dollars was spent to put that newspaper on its feet. Finally it was sold for a few hundred thousand dollars, the price of its Associated Press franchise.

The reason for these developments probably is not generally understood by the public, although it is perfectly familiar to publishers. With the growth of the service, and with the increased cost of production since the war, newspaper publication has become enormously expensive. The amount of revenue available to the newspaper in any city is limited. Even in great industrial centers with a million population, like Cleveland and St. Louis, the possible revenue will support only one morning paper. The paper that deserves this revenue gets it. Its rivals starve.

The successful paper becomes the recognized advertising medium. People turn to it to learn what to buy because they know it carried all the advertising worth while. The inferior paper languishes until the owners tire of making up the deficit. Then it goes to the wall.

The fate of the Cleveland Times is simply an illustration of a universal tendency.—Kansas City Times.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

Otto H. Kahn, the banker, gave Princeton men ten rules of success. One was to "know how to sit tight." Mr. Kahn, you don't consider Mr. Andrews' feelings at all! . . . Kahn urged the students to take an active interest in public affairs. But what this country needs most these days is a few private affairs. . . . You don't have to go through business armed to the teeth, was one of Kahn's axioms. What if you live in Illinois? . . . A reputation is the most valuable asset, he counseled. But, around income tax time, you'd better hide that, too.

SOCIETY

Jefferson Circle.

The Jefferson Circle, Parent-Teacher Association, will meet at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Jefferson school. Miss Ruth Jean Souter of the education department of the State Teachers College will give a talk.

Delphian Society.

The regular meeting of the Mary Graham Chapter, Delphian Society, was held last night at the home of Mrs. F. S. King. The program was on the German and Spanish Schools of Art. Mrs. H. R. Juvenal told of Albrecht Durer and Hans Holbein, German painters, and Mrs. Roy Curfman discussed three Spanish painters, Velasquez, Murillo and Goya. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. King on March 22 when Early French Painters will be the topic discussed.

Invited to Meet Mrs. Reeve.

Mrs. W. A. Masters of St. Joseph, president of the State Congress of Parents and Teachers, has invited members of the Maryville organization to a reception next Tuesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. A. H. Reeve of Philadelphia, president of the National Congress. The affair will be held in the crystal room of the Robidoux Hotel and is tendered Mrs. Reeve by the St. Joseph council of the national association. The state officers will honor Mrs. Reeve with a luncheon Tuesday noon. Mrs. L. L. St. Clair and Mrs. E. L. Wilson of Maryville hold state offices. Mrs. F. A. Bush, president of the Maryville organization, will go to St. Joseph for the reception and other local members will probably attend.

Jolly Mixers Club.

Ten members attended an all-day meeting of the Jolly Mixers Club at the home of Mrs. Charles Wakely last week. Two comforts were tacked and dinner was served cafeteria style. An interesting program of songs, a one-act play, and a talk by Mrs. John Wakely was given and various games were played. Minnie Kaufman won first prize and Lucy McDowell and Helen Kemper, second. Mrs. John Wakely was a visitor. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Fred Kemper.

Missionary Meeting.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, held an all-day meeting yesterday at the home of Mrs. N. G. Ellis. A covered dish luncheon was served at noon. The devotional service was in charge of the Rev. R. A. Mitchell, and Mrs. J. W. Cornell was discussion leader. The discussion theme was: "What are the new situations in which the native women of our mission fields find themselves today, and how are these situations affecting the work of missions?" Mrs. R. M. Barry told of the Women of Japan; Mrs. W. T. Gray, Women of Korea; Mrs. I. E. Tulloch, Women of Africa; Mrs. Tom Fisher, Women of South America, and Mrs. N. F. Humber, Women of China. At the business meeting a movement was started to create an interest in world wide missions. The following committee was appointed to canvass the local membership: Mrs. M. E. Farrar, Mrs. W. T. Gray, Mrs. N. F. Humber, Mrs. I. E. Tulloch, Mrs. J. W. Cornell, Mrs. N. G. Ellis, Mrs. R. M. Barry, Mrs. Earl Henderson, Mrs. Tom Fisher and Mrs. J. H. Thorp.

Both Are Nora Bayes

—NEA, Detroit Bureau

Nora Bayes has lots of things named in her honor. New York named a theater after the popular musical comedy and variety star. Now a Detroit floriculturist, Vincent R. DePetris, has named a new white carnation the "Nora Bayes carnation." Nora is shown here with an armful of them.

March 1 Sees More Moving Than Usual

Many Changes Made on Farms in Vicinity of Burlington Junction.

March 1 is the annual moving time in the Burlington Junction community, according to the Burlington Junction Post, and it seems that there are more changes than usual this year. Among those who have moved recently are:

Ira Hall has moved from a farm near Rock Port to the C. R. Howell place recently purchased by Ed Spangler.

Sam Meyers, who has been living on the Howell place has moved to the Chas. Caldwell place north of town.

Mrs. E. Martin and children of Macon, Mo.; who have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Echterling, returned home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Mumford and family of Athelstan, Ia., are moving on the A. F. Hall farm south of Parnell.

Frowin Guenther and family of Barnard moved to Parnell last week. They have rented the Milligan property and Mr. Guenther will work for the Harman Motor Co.

Mr. and Mrs. John Spire who have been living in Maryville for several months, moved to their home here, Saturday.—Parnell Review.

Ravenwood Changes.

Quite a number of changes will take place in our neighborhood about the first of March. Everett Porter and family will move to the Ab Fite place in Casteel district; Darl Porter and family will move on the Knabb farm vacated by Everett, and it is reported that Roy Parent will live where Darl Porter has been living. Also Mr. McDonald's will move from the Chas. Hood place to the Perry Evans farm just east of the church. A new family will move on the Vaughn farm but your scribe did not learn their name.—Ravenwood Gazette.

Defeated Wet Sees "Excellent Chance"

John Philip Hill, Bloc Leader, Predicts Growth From 63 to 80 Members in Next Congress.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington, March 9.—

John Philip Hill has gone away.
He made the House some wetter.
If he had been allowed to stay
He might have done some better
In making the House some wetter.

In case his career here is over, one may at least put some such homely epitaph on Hill's tombstone.

Barely voted out of Congress when he sought election to the Senate last November, Congressman Hill has left Washington with an unequaled record of spectaculuar work for the cause of the wets.

When he came six years ago, the die-hards had virtually given up trying to make any dent in the solid dry phalanx in the House.

On his first day in Congress, Hill promptly introduced a bill to repeal the Volstead Act.

In that Congress, the sixty-seventh, he organized the wet bloc, consisting of representatives favoring modification of the Volstead Act. Hill was made chairman of this committee and functioned in that position during the sixty-seventh, sixty-eighth and sixty-ninth Congresses.

Today the committee has 63 members. The optimistic Hill even believes modification has an "excellent chance" next year.

"This committee will be a committee of 80 in the next House," Hill said as he started packing up and had turned over the affairs of the valiant little group to his successor.

"We have that many definite promises of membership.

"There will be at least a hundred more congressmen who will vote for a bill to allow each state to determine what alcoholic content in beverages is intoxicating.

"In the sixty-seventh Congress there were 102 members who actually voted wet on a test vote.

"In the sixty-eighth Congress, had there been a test vote, there would have been 151 votes for modification.

"In the sixty-ninth Congress, if modification had been brought up, there would have been more than 170 votes for it.

"In the seventieth Congress, I estimate that 184 votes will favor modification and I believe there is a fine chance to change the Volstead Act for the better.

"Many of the New York and Pennsylvania people have seen the light in the last year and our modification is growing so rapidly in each succeeding Congress that modification is absolutely inevitable."

Democrats of Union Township to Meet

Emmett Gray, Democratic committeeman of Union township, has called a mass meeting of the Democrats of Union township to meet at Pickering at 2 o'clock Saturday, March 19, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the various offices.

Sent to State Hospital.

Pauline Bliss, age 17, who has been suffering with epileptic fits, a form of insanity, yesterday was sent to the state hospital No. 2 at St. Joseph, by an order of the county court.

She has been a student at the high school and is a daughter of Mrs. Joshua Bliss of Maryville.

The Prince of Wales

The Most Interesting and Most Popular Personality of the Twentieth Century.

By Minott Saunders.
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

THE SPORTING PRINCE.

LONDON, March 9.—The Prince of Wales is greater as a sportsman than he is great in sport. He plays games and hunts with intense enthusiasm, often with disquieting recklessness, but he is not an expert at any game.

More important than his skill, however, is his splendid spirit in athletic competitions. He always tries to do well, but he places sportsmanship above individual triumph, and he is a good loser. He is loved as the sporting prince because he so admirably typifies the English code of "sport for sports' sake."

H. R. H. is chiefly celebrated abroad for his "falling to the hounds," but this impression of his riding is unfair because it does not do him credit. Riding is his favorite sport and this season he has been hunting an average of twice a week. His record at Melton Mowbray, where he usually hunts, is better than that of many recognized fine horsemen, but his trouble is that every time he takes a toss the spill goes reverberating around the world. What often escapes his critics is his pluck in leaping to his feet and chasing his mount across the field in order to continue the hunt. He may go down—that being part of the game—but he never goes out.

Interested Since Childhood.

The Prince has taken an interest in sport from childhood. He kicked a football about the royal gardens with his brothers, and later at Sandringham played matches with children of the neighborhood, but often became irritated because they respected his princely person to the detriment of their attack. He was a keen bicycle rider and showed an early hankering for speed.

At Oxford young Edward first came in contact with his fellows in sport on an equal footing. He liked rugby, but was not sturdy enough to take part in actual matches. His best game at that time was soccer football. He was fast on his feet and shifty with the ball. He didn't mind in the least taking a shoulder or being spilled in the mud. He became a familiar figure on the field with the Magdalen second eleven.

Unlike most aristocratic Englishmen, the Prince never cared much for cricket, and rarely attempted to play it. His friends also believed the game was too slow for him, which was probably true. He has always shown a preference for keen excitement in sport. Curiously enough, tennis never interested him much. He never learned to play well, and he is too self-conscious to appear as a dub in a game. His brother, Albert, the Duke of York, is the star tennis player of the family, and has played at Wimbledon in doubles.

Much Time At Golf.

Edward has spent much time at golf, particularly during the past two or three years. He is credited with a handicap of fourteen, but only on his best days out can he justify this rating. He is very human at golf and makes many mistakes. His chief difficulty in perfecting his game is the curiosity of crowds. Before he gets over a hole or two on any course he has attracted a big gallery, and this makes him nervous and puts him off his game. On one occasion he topped an easy approach and then pulled off his cap and gave it a disgusted fling, immediately, however he recovered himself, and with a sheepish smile went and got his cap and resumed play. His feeling about the game is reflected in a remark he once made to some fellow players:

"It is easier to make an ass of yourself at golf than in any other game in the world."

Unlike his father, the Prince is not very keen on shooting. He has done a fair amount of bird shooting on the moors, and he handles a gun well, but he prefers to hunt or play polo.

"When I get older and cannot hunt as I do now, I shall probably take up shooting seriously," he once explained. If he does he will have to improve to equal his father. The King is one of the best guns in the country.

Best At Squash Rackets.

Edward's best game is squash rackets. When he is in town he plays almost daily, usually in the morning to set him up for the day. Also he greatly delights in running. He is an early riser and often, clad in a sweater and running shorts, he will be in the palace gardens by seven o'clock, running around briskly and limbering up.

But Edward is happiest where horses are concerned. He first took up riding seriously at Oxford, and since then it has been a craze with him. Hunting is his chief joy in life. He loves polo, and sometimes plays a very creditable game, but he lacks the weight and strength to be expert. He does not get much time to play, but he is ambitious of improving his form.

"I shall go to India one day again when I can," he remarked to a friend. "It is just one vast polo ground, and I want to play well."

Fine Rider On Flat.

The Prince is a very fine rider on the flat, but he is an indifferent steeplechaser. Critics who study his riding from the horseman's point of view say that he does not possess the horseman's hands. His grip is also faulty, and he is frequently seen taking fences too far out of the saddle. But he is dead game. He rides the most spirited hunters and has no fear of them. He tackles all obstacles and takes great chances. If he comes a cropper he offers no excuses, but is keener than ever for the hunt. Many attempts have been made to restrain him, but in riding his will is firm. In 1924 the question of his riding was taken up in Commons and it was there stated that "The nation views with apprehension the manner in which he exposes himself to danger, and trusts that his Royal father will exercise upon him an appropriate measure of restraint." For a time Edward curtailed his riding, but he refused to be persuaded to abandon the sport.

The Prince keeps seventeen hunters at Melton Mowbray, but in buying horses he always asks the advice of experts. In tumbles at various times he has broken both shoulder blades, sprained a wrist and an ankle and has been kicked hard in the face, but his morale is higher than ever. His riding is no joke to him and he feels that the popular reaction to his tosses is not sporting.

The Prince has played the games of many peoples in many lands. He was very keen on pig-sticking in India, but he did not like tiger hunting as it was introduced to him in India because he was taken on a State Hunt, with a ring of elephants protecting him, and this was not what he regarded as sport. He likes lots of action, and wants to take chances. He shares with many young men of his age the restlessness that is a heritage of the war, and he finds an outlet in exciting sport.

What Jerry Says

Anyone can draft a statute
Without much thought or pains;
To beat the filibusters
Is where it takes the brains.

The cheapest way we can collect
The taxes, I consider,
Is for the courts to let it out
To the lowest and best bidder.

Let county courts, the first of March,
In papers advertise
That they will open up the bids,
And see who wins the prize.

The tax can be collected
In one month as well as three;
Let that month be December,
Before the Christmas spree.

There are girls in every township,
And fellows by the score,
Will do the job up nifty,
And save two-thirds or more.

Why fool along all winter
On a job that can be done
As easily in thirty days
As it can in ninety-one.

On the first of January
Slap on the penalty,
And let the county treasurer
Earn his salary.

Don't talk about efficiency—
That stuff is all the bosh—
I've told you how to do it,
Now you tell one b'gosh.

Public Must Learn Principles of Planes

Parachutes For Passengers "Pure Folly" Except For Army, Navy And Stunt Flying English Aviator Declares.

Detroit, March 9.—The public must be taught the fundamental principles of the airplane before America will have full benefit of aerial navigation, in the belief of Sir Alan Cobham, noted English aviator.

"The average man on the street does not realize even the fundamental pricipals of aviation," the English pilot said. "Safety is the first thing he looks to. If he has more confidence in three motored planes than in single motor ships then that is the way the future development must go."

Sir Alan described as "pure folly" the action of some passenger lines in providing parachutes for passengers. He declared these are necessary only for army and navy fliers who engage in combat and stunt flying.

Girl Reserves Have Loyalty Discussion

Different phases of loyalty were discussed today by the beginning Girl Reserve organization of the Maryville High School. Articles from the Girl Reserve magazine were read by the sponsor, Miss Anna R. Crane. Devotions were in charge of Helen Davis.

THE GREAT WAR TEN YEARS AGO TODAY.

(By United Press)

MARCH 9.

President Wilson summons Congress to meet in extra session on April 16 to consider the state of relations with Germany and to take measures accordingly.

The administration decides to arm merchant ships at once, it having been determined that the President was authorized to order this without the express authorization of Congress.

The Navy Department urges the press hereafter to refrain from printing news of ship movements.

This and That

"Spring has came." And here is why. Seven yellow and gold crocuses in the yard at the home of Mrs. G. W. Null, 203 West Cooper street, are in bloom today. The first one blossomed on Monday.

This is one pulled at the minstrel at the First Methodist Church last night: "In Dr. James' class at the college the other day this question was asked: 'Who are the four horsemen?'

Bright student: "Paul Revere, Teddy Roosevelt, Barney Google and Dr. Stinson."

Ponzi Out-Ponzied.

A contributor to the Chicago Tribune is puzzled over the following. Having deposited $50 in a bank he withdrew:

First	$20, leaving a balance of...	$30
Second	15, leaving a balance of...	15
Third	9, leaving a balance of...	6
Fourth	6, leaving a balance of...	0
	$50	$51

He wants that extra dollar which he says is still there to his credit, explained. We shall not attempt it; but with a financial acumen amazing even to ourselves we have cogitated a plan to more than double our money every year. The plan is as follows: First, and this is easy, we persuade fifty bankers to keep their books in the above way. Second, on the first Monday of the year we deposit with one of said bankers $5,000, which we draw out during the week in the same ratio as above, leaving $100 to our credit on his books. We then deposit the $5,000 in bank number two and follow the same process as before, and so we go on during the entire year, ending up with our $5,000 in hand and a trial of fifty-two banks owing us $100 each. Total, $10,200.

P. S.—The extra $200, by the way, might be spent in advance, feeding dope to the fifty bankers in order to get them to keep our account on their books in this peculiar way. If we could manage it with bootleg whisky, so much the better.—Boston Transcript.

Origin of Oxford Bags.

Oxford, England, March 9.—The origin of Oxford bags has been fixed.

An Oxford tailor has disclosed that he supplied two undergrads with white flannels, and each tried to outdo the other in the matter of width. One would ask how wide the other was ordering his trousers and would then go one better. They went on and on until their flannels got to be 24 inches at the knee and 22 inches at the turn-up.

To his surprise, said the tailor, the new vogue caught on and Oxford bags were the result.

Auto Company Sues on Note.

John Sewell, for the Sewell Automobile Company of Maryville, today sued D. E. Florea for collection of a $275 note.

The suit was filed in the circuit court for the April term.

Will Save Taxpayers $100,000,000 in 5 Years

New Treasury Notes Will Be Issued March 15; Persons Trading in Bonds Allowed Interest to May 15.

Washington, March 9. — Taxpayers will be saved more than $100,000,000 in the next five years by the Treasury's latest financial maneuver, in replacing 4¼ per cent second Liberty bonds with 3½ per cent interest five-year treasury notes.

The second Liberty bond issue, due in 1924, is callable on November 15, and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon plans to retire all outstanding bonds with smaller interest notes, provided money conditions remain favorable.

This financing operation, the greatest attempted by an nation since the world war, involves about $3,104,520,000 the amount outstanding for the Liberty bond issue.

The new treasury notes will be issued March 15. Persons trading in bonds for the new securities will be allowed interest on their second bonds to May 15, 1927.

Forces Split Over Dry Commissioner

Coolidge Under Pressure From Various Groups With Candidates for New Post.

Washington, March 9. — President Coolidge is under pressure from various groups with candidates for the new post of prohibition commissioner, an official whom will be directly in charge of enforcement under assistant secretary of the Treasury Andrews.

A split exists in the dry forces over the place. The anti-saloon league is pushing present Commissioner Roy A. Haynes, while the Methodist Board of Temperance and Public Morals is supporting E. C. Yellowly, prohibition administrator of Chicago. For two years Haynes has been engaged in field surveys, active enforcement being in charge of James E. Jones, assistant commissioner.

Senator Willis, Republican, Ohio, leading dry, is championing the cause of Haynes, an Ohio man.

Both Haynes and Yellowly have been on the ground here since President Coolidge signed the new law creating a commissioner's job which has teeth.

Appleman; Johnny Overalls, Mrs. Charles Gaugh; Uncle Jonah, Paul Neal; Pernycius Anemya, Mrs. Emmett Scott; Hard Hearted Hanna, Mrs. C. L. Owens; Mose White, Kenney Tebow.

Bernhardt Bronson as 'Uncle Rome' sang "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen."

Miss Gertrude Wray accompanied Doris Wray on the piano.

Others in the minstrels were Mrs. Steve Donahue, L. L. King, Emmett Scott and William Gaugh.

I. O. O. F. Lodge May Have Baseball Team

Players Would Weigh Less Than 100 Pounds Each; Committee Makes Investigation.

The I. O. O. F. Lodge may sponsor a boys' baseball team here this summer, it was announced today. A committee to investigate the matter was appointed at a meeting of the lodge members last night. The players' weights would not exceed 100 pounds and the team would go under the I. O. O. F. name. The committee will make a report at a meeting next Tuesday night.

It was decided that the members will go to Savannah, Tuesday night with the I. O. O. F. orchestra for degree work. Perry F. Jackson, noble grand, appointed Harry King as degree master in the absence of Guy Eads. The degree team practiced after lodge. All those going to Savannah are asked to go early in the evening.

Dr. James' Postponed Lecture Tomorrow

Three Maryville Musicians Also to Go to Pickering to Give Lyceum Course Number.

Dr. C. C. James, pastor of the First Methodist Church here, will deliver his postponed lecture, "A Crusader in Old Clothes," in the Pickering Christian Church at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

This is the fourth number of the free lyceum course sponsored by the Pickering church. Dr. James' lecture was scheduled for several weeks ago but was delayed because of bad weather.

Musical numbers are to be given before the lecture by Miss Gertrude Wray, pianist. Miss Vernita Moore, violinist, and Lawrence Wray, cellist, all of Maryville. Admission is free.

Another number of the lyceum course, the entertainment by Miss Violet Eastman of the State Teachers College faculty and the College Dramatic Club, also postponed because of unfavorable weather, will be given soon.

George Hackett, E. E. Hackett and W. N. Houston of Burlington Junction were Maryville visitors today. Mrs. Houston is visiting her daughter, Mrs. E. F. Scott, and attended the minstrel revue at the First Methodist Church last night.

Charles Broyles of Wilcox was in Maryville today.

John Stevenson and Charles Barnes of Worth were in Maryville today on business.

No Presbyterian Service.

No midweek services will be held tonight at the First Presbyterian Church, because of illness of the minister, the Rev. William N. Dewar.

LEGISLATURE TO RUN OVER

SLATE CANNOT BE CLEARED IN REGULAR 70 DAYS.

REVENUE HOPE FADE

Governor's "Nuisance Taxes" Face Perilous Journey.—Four Appropriation Bills Pass.

(Written by J. S. Hubbard, Executive Secretary Missouri Press Association and Official Reporter House of Representatives.)

Jefferson City, March 9.—With the close of the regular seventy-day session but ten days away and with the House calendar loaded, it seems impossible to clean up the slate within the constitutional limit unless the knife is applied unsparingly to many measures left for consideration. And there are still several that are of great importance that will require much time for disposal. Few believe that the work can be finished within a week or ten days of the time the session should close.

Hope for additional revenue at this session to help the schools and state institutions is almost despaired of. There is some talk that the Senate may approve the Governor's "nuisance tax" measure, at least in part, but earlier in the session it was given out that it had no chance in the Senate. However, the failure of the House to pass the revenue measure increasing the property tax 2 cents on the hundred dollars, raising the corporation franchise tax from 50c to 75c and the income tax from 1 per cent to 1½ per cent, may result in something more being done to pass the Governors' bill. There are still pending in the House three bills, calling for the same increases as the one turned down, but having the three propositions separated.

The Cave joint and concurrent resolution submitting to the people a bond issue of $10,000,000 to be used for buildings and maintenance of the state institutions was introduced this week. It would be voted on in 1928, if approved by the Senate and House, but would not relieve the present needs at this time.

Several Bills Passed.

Two full days were given over in the House this week to the passage of House bills and several were also passed in the Senate, in addition to Senate measures.

Among the bills passed by the Senate was the Kinney bill for changing the initiative ballot to read "for" and "against" in submitting questions to a vote of the people.

The bill by Senator Ford providing that the death penalty be inflicted by electrocution at the state penitentiary was passed by the Senate. A similar bill is on the House calendar for third reading.

Senator Haymes' bill, abolishing the criminal court in Greene county and vesting its powers in the circuit court, was passed.

In a bill of Senator Ford, passed in the Senate, the stealing of thirty dollars in money or certain animals such as horses, cows, mules, sheep, etc., constitute grand larceny.

The Senate on Thursday passed the House bill requiring state departments and heads of all state institutions to furnish full information to the state tax commission in making up its budget.

Appropriations Approved.

Four appropriation bills that had been passed by the House were approved by the Senate. These provide for the payment of principal and interest on school and seminary bonds, road bonds, soldier bonus bonds and the assessment and collection of taxes, together with the per diem of the members of the board of equalization.

The Appropriations Committee is getting its work well in hand and has most of the important appropriation bills in the House for disposal. Three new ones this week provide for the payment of the expenses of the general assembly, for the state departments and for several items of general relief.

Both the House and Senate passed bills on the same day providing for the payment of a regular salary to the reporter in the court of common pleas at Cape Girardeau. Two other bills relating to this court were passed by the House, both being introduced by Representative Cross.

The free textbook bill was passed by the Senate. This provides for the distribution of the foreign insurance taxes to the schools. A uniform textbook bill in the House by Representative Russell failed of passage.

Both Houses passed bills on Thursday providing for an increase of court commissioners in the supreme court from four to six.

COMPANY'S COMING.

A bill by Messrs. Wilson, Bamber, and Heege of St. Louis county, passed by the House Thursday, provides that the clerk of the circuit court in counties containing not less than 100,000 and not more than 250,000, containing a city of the first class, shall act as ex-officio member of the parole board of the county, composed of the judges of the circuit court in the county.

Can Sell Goat Meat.

Two bills by Representative Roberts were passed by the House on Friday. One raised the pay of the chief clerk in the office of the attorney-general from $2,400 to $2,800 per year, while the other will make it lawful to sell goat meat under the name of "chevron."

A bill by Representative LeMire, passed in the House, provides for "jewelers' block policies" of insurance.

A bill by Representative Williams of St. Francois county, passed by the House, will raise the pay of penitentiary guards from $115 to $135 per month.

A bill by Representative Henry, passed by the House, adds wild cats to the list of animals on which bounties may be paid in the statute providing a bounty on wolves. The bounty on full-grown wild cats is placed at $5 and on kittens at $3.

Another bill by Representative Henry, passed by the House, provides the death penalty for robberies in the first degree, or imprisonment in the penitentiary for twenty years.

Representative Zevely carries out his belief in equal rights for men and women by providing in a bill passed by the House, that a widower shall have the same dower rights in the estate of his wife as the widow has now in the estate of her husband.

Teaching Standard Lowered.

A bill by Representative Bales of Shannon, passed in the House Friday, reduces the requirements for a third grade certificate to teach, in that it strikes out of the law passed in 1925 the provisions that applicants for such a certificate must show evidence after Sept. 1, 1925, of having had the equivalent of three years in a high school and after Sept. 1, 1927, of having had four years or the equivalent in high school. It will allow applicants with two years' high school training, or its equivalent, to take examination for a third grade certificate.

A bill by Representative Cross extends the power to regulate the height of buildings and provide zoning ordinances to all incorporated cities, towns and villages. It was passed by the House on Friday.

House bill 702, which exempts bills receivable from taxation and which has the backing of many business organizations, has been made a special order for engrossment on Tuesday evening, following the engrossment of two appropriation bills set for that night.

A bill by Representative Parker, passed by the House adds the clerk of the circuit court to the board of jury supervisors the bill applying only to the city of St. Louis.

House bill 82, by Representatives Moody and Henry, passed by the House, provides that the mayor and council, commissioners or township board in cities, villages, towns and townships having less than 25,000 inhabitants may levy a tax of not more than one-half mill on each one dollar assessed valuation to provide for free band concerts, or a special election may be called by petition of one-tenth of the qualified electors for the same purpose, the limit in this case being two mills.

Barber Inspection Fails.

The bill to extend the provision of the barber inspection board to all cities and towns of the state irrespective of size failed of engrossment in the House, after an extended debate. The bill was practically killed when Representative Freeland introduced an amendment providing that all regulations for barber shops be made by the state board of health and that they be inspected by the inspectors of the pure food and drug department. The amendment was adopted and the bill then placed on the informal calendar where it will probably die.

A bill by Representative Myers of Livingston county, passed in the House, provides that hereafter all public buildings erected by the county court of any county in the state for the purposes of infirmary, hospital or poorhouse, shall be of fireproof construction.

The "bee" inspection bill by Representatives Lawrence, Moody, Crawford and Marsh was passed in the House Friday.

A bill by Representative Russell, to transfer the inspection of places selling gasoline and motor oils from the oil inspection department to the food and drug department, failed of passage in the House by a vote of 54 to 37, it requiring 76 votes to pass any bill.

May Sell Confiscated Fish.

A bill by Representatives Owsley and Williams, passed by the House, will allow the fish and game commissioner, where he deems it not practical or advisable to donate confiscated fish or game to some charitable institution or hospital, to sell the confiscated articles and place the proceeds in the game protection fund. Another bill by Representative Williams, of Lincoln, provides for the sale of articles used in the work of the fish and game department and the placing of the proceeds in the protection fund.

The appropriation bill for the state educational institutions was passed by the House on Friday.

From the words of commendation received by the state marketing bureau from listeners-in on the nightly reports of the General Assembly prepared by M. L. Francis of the Slater News-Rustler, the service is much appreciated. This is a new service inaugurated this year and Mr. Francis has prepared and broadcast many interesting phases of the work of the House and Senate. Newspaper men will be pleased to know of his good work.

"The Spirit Should Dominate"

SCRIPTURE: Read — Romans 8:5-17.

"For if ye live after the flesh, ye must die: but if by the Spirit ye put to death the deeds of the body, ye shall live"; (Rom. 8:13). "Ye therefore shall be perfect even as your heavenly Father is perfect" (Mt. 5:48). "And if thy hand or thy foot causeth thee to stumble, cut it off, and cast it from thee" (Mt. 18:8).

See—Romans 8:2; Ephesians 4:22-24; I Timothy 4:8.

MEDITATION: If it is a question between love and luxury, if it is a question between using possessions selfishly or magnanimously, the spiritual-minded man suffers from no uncertainty; he values the spirit above everything. Yet so strong are the bodily appetites and the lesser instincts that rigorous discipline is necessary to attain spiritual dominance.

"No man can steer his way through the ocean of life whose eye is not on the stars."

PRAYER: Pray for—spiritual power; the alert mind that sees clearly; the discouraged.

Collect—O God, who dwellest in the beauty of holiness, we praise Thee for the beauty of the earth, for loveliness embodied in noble men and for the revelation of Thyself in Jesus Christ the incarnation of thy conquering love. We are covered with shame at the thought of Thy faithfulness for we have not been ever true to Thee. Keep us from infidelity to Thy friendship. Save us from treachery of soul. From the choice of evil and from the enthronement of the lesser things deliver us. Awaken in us a living sense of Thy spirit. Give us hunger and thirst for righteousness. May our hearts burn with the presence of Christ in us. So would we enthrone Thee, trust Thee, love Thee, obey Thee; all by the grace of Christ. Amen.

May Be Congress' First Centenarian

Major Charles Manly Stedman, South's "Grand Old Man," Is 86—Returned for Another Term.

By Rodney Dutcher.
NEA Service Writer.

Washington, March 9.—Major Charles Manly Stedman, the south's grand old man in Congress, cherishes a desire to be the first centenarian to sit in either house.

He is 86, and hence nearer the 100-year mark than anyone now serving.

Stedman will begin his ninth term as representative from the Fifth North Carolina district next December.

"This last Congress compared very favorably with any I've ever seen," the major admitted after it had breathed its last. "They're nearly all very high-class men, despite what anyone says. They have to have some distinction to bring them here. The reason I like being in Congress so well is that it gives a personal association with men of ability and character."

It may be that Major Stedman actually will be here when he's a hundred years old. Fate long ago had its chances to knock him off. He never has worn glasses, has all his teeth, and seldom is ill.

When he was five years old he escaped death in a fire only because a Negro mammy broke down his bedroom door with an ax and dragged little Charlie out just in time.

In the Civil War, he was wounded at the battle of the Wilderness, Spottsylvania Courthouse and the second battle of Cold Harbor. At the Wilderness he was shot in the ribs, in the thigh and in the head, and he attributes survival to a Negro boy from his grandmother's plantation who came in and pulled him out.

After the war, he was at his brother's side in Fairfield, N.C., when the brother, Robert Winship Stedman, was killed by a Confederate deserter named Morrow. Robert had slapped Morrow's face for calling a friend a liar. Morrow subsequently shot Robert five times as Major Stedman stood by.

"Put my gun on my arm," Robert directed the major as he lay dying on the ground. The major obeyed and Morrow fell dead with three bullets in his body. Robert Stedman died five minutes later.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE . . .

Death strikes GARRENTT FOLSOM while bathing at Ocean Town, N. J. After being perfunctorily examined by a doctor, the body is brought to the Hoted Majusaca, where an inquiry is started.

Folsom's bathing companions had been ROGER NEVILLE, MRS. BARNABY, and CARMELITA VALDIN. It is established that Folsom, just before his death, had been standing next to NED BARRON, known as the copper king.

Then the startling announcement is made that Folsom had been stabbed to death in the water. ROSS, his valet, is questioned, as are Barron and his wife, but no light is shed on the mystery.

ANASTASIA FOLSOM, eccentric and masterful sister of the dead man, arrives and takes command. At the inquest it is established that the death weapon was a pichaq, an Oriental knife, and that it and its scabbard had been purchased on the boardwalk.

Some suspicion attaches to one CROYDON SEARS, who is a collector of curious bladed weapons, and Anastasia asks TITUS RIGGS, an architect, to try to solve the murder.

It is also established that one Croydon Sears is a fancier of curious knives. Anastasia engages TITUS RIGGS, an architect, to work on the case. He asks permission to go through the dead man's effects.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 21

"Of course, that's what I want you to do, Mr. Riggs," said Anastasia Folsom. "But I can't feel that you can find anything of evidential value where I have failed. I've hunted all through his belongings, and though I found a lot of things I don't understand, I saw nothing that seemed, in the least, a straw to show which way the wind blows."

"No, I suppose not, or you would have told me. What do you make of these dolls?"

"They surprise me. Of course I know that they are a fad, just now. And I know that the dolls here are of the best and finest French variety. They doubtless came from Paris. But they don't suggest anything to me—do they to you?"

"No, I can't say that they do. But it is a strange taste for a man of Folsom's type. I can understand his having them in Paris—but to bring them home with him, and then bring them down here—did he cart them about wherever he went?"

"Yes, some of them. Ross told me that four of five of them were always packed with his luggage when he went away."

"Queer to say the least," commented Riggs.

Dan Pelton arrived about noon on Sunday.

He went straight to his aunt's apartment and found her there awaiting him. Paxton, the maid, was hovering about, and Miss Folsom dismissed her as she rose to greet her nephew.

"How are you, Dan? Sit over there. Smoke, if you like. Now, there's small use in your talking; you've nothing to say of interest. I'll tell you all there is to know."

Whereupon she launched into a full recital of the circumstances of Folsom's death as she knew them, of the inquest and the verdict, and then proceeded to outline her plans for the future.

"I'm going to find the brute who killed Garrett if it takes my whole lifetime and my whole fortune as well. My brother was the only person on earth I loved or cared for. I don't believe you care two cents about it all! You sit there like a bump on a log saying nothing!"

"You said for me not to talk," observed Pelton, composedly.

He was a tall, slender young man, about twenty-seven, and far from handsome. His pale blue eyes were a trifle prominent, his pale brown hair was scanty and his long, thin fingers had a way of moving restlessly about, as if his nervous temperament demanded some physical outlet.

Yet he was calmly at east, except for his ceaselessly moving fingers, and he looked at his aunt with a nod of comprehension.

"And you're not far out," he told her, "when you say I don't care much. About Uncle Garry's loss, I mean. I'm shocked and all that, at the manner of his taking off, but, as you know, there was no love lost between us."

"I know it, and I resent it, and I resent your presence here—"

"Of course you do, and you resent my inheritance under uncle's will, and you resent my being alive at all! But, you know, Aunt Stasia, all that doesn't cut any ice with me. We Folsoms are all pretty much alike, each devoted to his own interests. Uncle Garrett was like that—"

"Hush. Not a word against him. I tell you, Dan Pelton, you'll be sorry if you take that attitude—"

"I'm not taking any attitude. I've never had but one feeling toward Uncle Garrett, and that is in no way changed by his death. But this talk is useless, aunt, and, as I only came down for the funeral, I'll stay for that and then I'll go back to New York."

"You'll stay here as long as I want you to, and no longer. Come, now, Dan, be nice to me. I'm very sad and lonesome and terribly upset."

"I know it, Aunt Stasia, and I really want to help you, but you know uncle and I never hit it off and you can't expect me to change all at once."

"No; but you can and must help me, if possible, to find and punish his murdered. You are the man of the family now—in fact you and I are the only members of the family left, and we must not quarrel."

"Well, I'll do all I can. I say, what are the dolls for? Are they yours?"

"No, they were Garrett's."

"Whew! Did he cart them around with him? For they don't look like the sort that grow down here."

"They are Parisian, that's clear. But they could have been bought here at that. Few things can't be achieved in Ocean Town. However, he did bring these with him. Ross says he usually took them wherever he went."

"Oh, Ross, that first-class man he had. I don't see why I shouldn't fall heir to Ross. Where is he?"

"Here. He's in my employ now, but if he's willing you can take him over. I've no real use for a man servant, except as a sort of courier to look after my luggage, and that's scarcely necessary. You know, Dan, you will have about a third of Garry's money—"

"You bet I know it! And you have a third and old Neville has a third. Aunt, why does Roger Neville get so much?"

"They planned it, Dan. Their wills were made at the same time, and whichever one of them lived longer inherited a third of the other's fortune."

"Then what price Neville as the murderer?"

"Don't be absurd. Well, as I was saying, now that you have a fair fortune, if you like to take on Ross do so."

"All right, and I'll take these rooms, aunt. You can get others to suit you. And I suppose I can have Uncle Garry's personal belongings; I mean his mannish traps—the ones that you can't use."

Pelton gave a quick, appraising glance at his aunt, realizing suddenly that with her own mannish effects, there might well be a few of her brother's things that she could use.

But she gave little heed to the subject and acquiesced in his plans for getting herself another suite.

"But you're to help me, Dan," she said gravely. "If you don't I shall cut you out of my will, and then the day will come when you will regret it."

"You bet I would," he exclaimed, fervently. "I don't want you to step off, Aunt Stasia, for I'm really fond of you. But when you do I most certainly expect to be your sole heir."

"You're a cold-blooded brute, Dan, but your prospects depend entirely on your meeting my wishes so long as I am alive to express them."

"Here goes then. What do you want me to do first?"

Dan Pelton was not really the brute he seemed, but he had thoroughly disliked his uncle, while he was friendly with his aunt. Money was his god, and at heart he was glad that circumstances had sent him a windfall. But he also looked forward to the time when his aunt's fortune should be his, too, though not with such greedy anticipation that he desired her immediate death.

He was humanly shocked at his uncle's fate, and more than willing to help his aunt in her efforts, so long as it didn't interfere too much with his own comfort.

"You see," he said, seriously, "all Ocean Town has risen as one man in indignation at this outrage. Oh, I don't mean the bathing population, the frivolous beach crowd, but the important people, city fathers, landholders, hotel men and all that. And the police, though up against it, are trying to do their best to get at the truth of the matter.

"How do you know all this?" asked his aunt in surprise. "You've only just arrived."

"Oh, I pick up news by instinct," Pelton returned, lighting another cigaret and walking about the room as he took up and scrutinized one doll after another. "I suppose I can have these toys, auntie?"

(To Be Continued)

"Oh, I pick up news by instinct," Pelton returned. "I suppose I can have these toys, Auntie?"

Those dolls in Folsom's room. What significance do they hold, and why does Dan Pelton want them?

CONCEPTION JUNCTION.

Lloyd Sickman and Wilbur Williams are visiting at the home of L. V. Dennis this week.

Neva Goss has been absent from school the last few days due to having her tonsils removed at the Sister's hospital in St. Joseph. Her condition is reported as satisfactory.

The third quarters exams will be held Thuprsday and Friday of this week.

Mildred Sullenger was absent from school Monday on account of sickness.

Grace and Doris Ingram spent the week end in Kansas City.

Mildred and Gerald Hurst have been absent from school a few days on account of their parents' moving.

The second grade has just completed Dutton's "In Field and Pasture." This makes eight second grade books and one third grade reader this grade has read this year.

Junior Diebel of Leavenworth, Kan., formerly a pupil of the primary room remembered all with valentines. Last week every pupil in the primary room wrote him a letter.

Norman and Nadine Chellew visited relatives in St. Joseph Saturday.

The primary room is being decorated for St. Patrick's day.

Margaret Wilson of the primary room was absent from school Monday and Tuesday.

The P. T. A. are still upholding the reputation they have made for themselves of building up the school both socially and materially. For the regular social meeting on March 17, a general good time is assured everyone who attends the meeting to be held in the public school building.

On the occasion of this thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, it is the high privilege of its million members to rededicate themselves to the achievement of the great purpose for which the Congress was founded, the welfare of the child in home, school, church and state.

This anniversary was fittingly commemorated here by a memorial program especially arranged and presented at the regular P. T. A. meeting on February 17. This impressive meeting aroused new enthusiasm among the members.

Harold Bright has returned to school again after his serious illness.

The Intermediate room has just finished redecorating its room with birds, butterflies, flowers, peach tree blossoms and other appropriate spring decorations.

HARMONY

In spite of the very muddy roads of Sunday morning, the morning service was quite well attended. Forty-eight were present in the Sunday School and a few more dropped in for the preaching hour. Mrs. Cunningham preached, and the sacrament of the communion was administered by Rev. and Mrs. Ida B. Cunningham in a very impressive manner. On account of the muddy roads the special song service that had been planned for the evening was postponed until Sunday evening, March 13, at which time it will be given.

Two rehearsals of the singers were held, one on Tuesday evening and the other one on Friday evening of last week, in preparation for the coming song service.

Church Inspirational Meeting will be held for four nights this week beginning Tuesday evening.

Rev. Alsup is now a resident of our neighborhood, having moved last week to the S. P. Ross farm just east of the church.

G. H. Null has been under the doctor's care the last week.

This winter has demonstrated that the way to have good roads in the winter is to drag the snow off as soon after it falls as possible.

President Coolidge was tugged from the White House to his temporary home in the Patterson residence on Dupont Circle, Washington, at the end of the leash of Bob Roy, the pet of the executive mansion. All his belongings but his dog the President entrusted to moving men—and for his care, Rob Roy towed him most of the way, often out of the Chief Executive's chosen pace.

Plastering on the new Coffelt house is rapidly nearing completion.

Genevieve Anderson, who has been an inmate of St. Francis, is rapidly recuperating at home. She has not yet returned to school.

Dorothy Ferguson was hastily removed to St. Francis for an examination and for a possible operation Monday of this week. It is thought that the operation will take place Tuesday morning.

The rain of Saturday made some of the muddiest roads of the season.

Miss Leatha Lawson accompanied a gang of our basketball fans to the tournament last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Royal Parent and family are now located on the Steiger farm immediately north of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford were trading in Maryville Monday evening.

School Notes.

The concert given under the auspices of our orchestra by the I. O. O. F. orchestra of Mayville last Wednesday evening was really the musical event of the season. Good! Why boy, everyone of them was an artist. Nothing but praise was heard from the audience. The readings of Miss Dorris Wallace were much appreciated. We only regret that there were not more people out to hear the fine music. Our orchestra played one selection and there was also a song by our glee club, and by a special quartet. We hope to have these gentlemen in a return engagement if possible.

Laurel Lee King was present at the concert and played with our orchestra. Good Boy!

Mrs. Ford and Donald Neal were in Maryville consulting Miss DeLuce of the S. T. C. last Wednesday.

Playground equipment will be in position soon at Common Sense.

Emmett Parent is a new member of our Freshman class in High School, coming for S. T. C.

Some of our basketball boys and numerous fans motored to Elmo last Saturday to take part in the basketball tournament. On account of the muddy roads not all of the players arrived and so our boys did not get to play.

The class in agriculture is constructing their second hot bed as a class project. It's a whopper.

At the meeting of the Board of Education held last Tuesday evening, routine business was transacted and arrangements made for the Spring Election the first Tuesday in April. All members were present.

Contestants are hard at work on the preparation for our elocutionary contest about the last of the month. This contest includes the A and B classes of the grades. Miss Burkett of the Myrtle Tree training school will probably act as judge.

Third Quarter's examinations in the offing.

Marvin and Dora May Parent are new grade pupils at Champaign school.

At a community meeting at Excelsior Monday evening of this week, the program was put on by the women of the district. They presented a snappy one-act play entitled "Tuning up for the Wedding." They served refreshments of cake and cream after the program. Dorris McKee is teacher at this school and is teaching her second term in this district.

Varicose Veins Reduced or Money Back, Say Druggists

THIS SIMPLE HOME TREATMENT GIVING AMAZING RESULTS.

The world progresses. Today ailments that took weeks to treat can now be ended in a few days. If you have varicose veins or bunches you can start today to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. It is a very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required.

After a few days' treatment the veins will begin to grow smaller and by regular use will soon reduce to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is also a marvelous healing agent.

One application for instance stops the itching of eczema, and a few applications causes the eruptions to dry up, scale off and completely disappear. It is equally as effective in barber's itch, salt rheum, redness and inflammatory skin trouble.

People who want to reduce varicose veins, or piles in a few days should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. Any pharmacy can supply you.—All druggists sell lots of it.

OBITUARIES 6

WILLIAM HENRY DINSMORE, son of Rev. Francis and Jane Patterson Dinsmore was born Nov. 17, 1858, at Morning Sun, Louisa County, Iowa, and passed away at his home in Maryville, Missouri, March 5th, 1927.

He came with his parents to Nodaway County, Mo., in 1872, settling near what is now Gaynor City, Mo. Here he grew to manhood. Sept. 8, 1886, he was united in marriage to Tabitha Frances Simmons. To this union were born five children. One died in infancy. The others Bessie Dinsmore, of Allerton, Ia.; Mrs. J. L. Gregory, of St. Joseph, Mo.; Frank Dinsmore, of Chicago, and Ada Dinsmore, of Marshall, Mo., survive.

He was a farmer, living near Gaynor City until 1913. Later he moved to a farm near Maryville. When his health failed about seven years ago he was compelled to give up his work and move to Maryville, where he resided until his death.

A child of the Covenant he was brought up under the training of a Godly parentage. In early manhood, upon profession of faith in Christ, he was received into the Presbyterian church and remained a member until his death.

The deceased was a kind and loving husband and father. Safe in counsel and management of the affairs of life. He lived a Godly and upright life and always stood for the principles in life which make it worth while. He was a highly respected citizen. God has taken him to himself. His earthly work is finished and his spirit has returned to God who gave it.

Mrs. Frances Griffin of Maryville and T. C. Dinsmore of St. Joseph, the wife and children and nine grandchildren survive.

Cattle Stronger; Hogs Lower; Lambs Higher

Kansas City Stock Yards, March 8. —Trade in fat cattle continues active. Choice light weight grades were 10 to 15 cents higher and nothing prime was shown in the strong and heavy weights. Some yearlings at $10.75 to $11.00 and strong weight Colorado steers at $11 to $11.50 showed the advance. Prime heavy corn fat steers would have brought $12.75 to $13, had they been available. Cows and heifers were 10c to 15 cents higher. Lambs were 10 to 15 cents higher than last week's close and only 15 cents under the extreme high point last week. Sheep were scarce. Hog prices broke 10 to 15 cents, because of a heavy run in Chicago.

Monday's Receipts.

Receipts Monday were 11,500 cattle, 9,000 hogs and 7,000 sheep compared with 14,500 cattle, 12,000 hogs and 7,000 sheep a week ago, and 12,100 cattle, 10,484 hogs, and 6,090 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle.

The few good to choice fat steers sold readily at strong to 15 cents higher prices. Some strong weight Colorado steers brought $11 to $11.50, but most of the good native steers shown were in the yearling classes and they brought $10.75 to $11.10. Had prime, medium and heavy weight steers been offered, the top price would have gone up to $13 or better. The plain to fairly good native steers sold at $8.50 to $10.25. Southern meal and hull fed steers brought $8 to $9.25. Receipts will be light the rest of this week and those who have cattle in condition will find an active demand. Cows and heifers were 10 to 15 cents higher. Most sales of cows at $5.75 to $7, and heifers $8 to $9.25. Choice heifers were lacking. Bulls were 25 cents higher. Veal calves were firm.

Stockers and Feeders.

Demand for stockers and feeders shows no signs of letting up. Prices Monday were strong and some orders could not be filled. All classes are wanted. Spring demand is getting under way and there is small chance for a break in the market for at least another six weeks.

Hogs.

Hog prices are 10 to 15 cents lower than Friday and 25 to 40 cents under the high point last week. Chicago with a run of 48,000 hogs was the depressing factor in the general market. Here receipts were light and there is no indication of an increase in the run for some time to come. The 140 to 170 pound hogs sold at $11.55 to $11.65; 170 to 225 pounds $11.45 to $11.60; 225 to 260 pounds, $11.35 to $11.50; 260 to 300 pounds, $11.15 to $11.35; packing sows, $10 to $10.50; stock hogs and pigs, $11.75 to $12.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

An advance of 10 to 15 cents in lamb prices took the market back to within 15 cents of last week's extreme high point. Trade after a slow start was active. Fat lambs brought $14.50 to $14.95; yearlings, $11.50 to $12; wethers, $9.50 to $10 and ewes, $8.50 to $9.25 and feeding lambs $14 to $14.50.

Horses and Mules.

Supplies for the auction were smaller than a week ago. Demand remained active. Prices were unchanged.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, March 9.—Weak cables and a bearish construction placed on the government report on farm reserves by some traders caused a lower range of wheat prices early but good buying developed on the dip and all losses were regained, with closing prices about at yesterday's final figures. Wheat receipts here were 25 cars.

Corn was under pressure early but rallied to above the previous close on good commission house buying. Receipts were 177 cars. The cash market was ½ to 1 cent lower. Cash demand was moderate.

Oats were relatively weaker than corn and did not show much snap, the farm reserve figures having a bearish influence on traders. Receipts were 43 cars. The cash market was steady and unchanged.

Provisions were quiet and steady.

School Bill, Once Killed, Is Revived

Measure Proposed by Lee Is Amended So County Superintendents May Fix Districts.

Jefferson City, March 9.—The Lee community school bill, which was killed by the House Feb. 22, when it came up for engrossment, was reconsidered, amended and ordered engrossed yesterday by the House.

Representative Roney of Jasper County drafted and was successful in having adopted an amendment which altered the bill materially in several respects. Charles A. Lee, State Superintendent of Public Schools, proposed the measure.

Instead of the provision in the original bill, which would have created a county board of education in each county to redistrict the counties into larger consolidated school districts, the bill as amended, provides that the County Superintendent of Schools designate the districts. No district already established could be changed, however. Each district must be at least 64 square miles in area, or have at least 500 children of school age, the bill provides. Special State aid would be granted districts which voted the constitutional limit of taxation for education.

Purposes of Bill.

Lee, in urging the passage of the bill, has said that it was designed "to correct glaring irregularities" in educational opportunities and support in the State and that the redistricting of the State into larger school districts would provide "more nearly equal educational opportunities for boys and girls."

St. Louis May Have Day Light Savings

St. Louis, March 9.—The question brought up by the Chamber of Commerce here as to whether the city shall adopt daylight saving this summer has met with much favor, according to a report by the chamber on the responses being received in the mail. The chamber intends to ask other organizations to join with it in urging the plan it is found popular.

The local chamber points out that St. Louis is alone among the large cities that has not adopted the policy in recent years and as a result has been placed at a great disadvantage in telegraphic and business transactions.

State Auto Tag Sale Tuesday 77; Total 3995

State automobile license sales yesterday were seventy-seven, according to D. A. Caldwell, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who is in charge of the branch office here for the purpose of distributing state licenses.

The total sales last week was augmented to 3,995 by yesterday's sales.

Sikeston—J. A. McNamara, secretary membership committee St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, was the chief speaker at a banquet here last week.

Mrs. T. A. Brashear Died Late Yesterday

Parnell Woman Is Survived By Husband And Three Children; Funeral Is Friday.

Mrs. Laura LaVanche Brashear, 77 years old, died at her home at Parnell at 6 o'clock last night. She succumbed to a lingering illness. Mrs. Brashear was born at Three Rovers, Mich., August 29, 1849.

The funeral services will be held at the Methodist Church at Parnell, Friday, the Rev. I. C. Green, Farrar, Ia., will conduct the service. He will be assisted by the Reverend James.

Mrs. Brashear was the mother of nine children, three of whom survive with the husband, T. A. Brashear. The surviving children are Mrs. Charles Evans and B. H. Brashear, Parnell and Mrs. G. W. Korell, Savannah; grandchildren are: Mrs. W. R. Uhrmacher, Hale, J. B. Korell, St. Joseph, V. A. Korell and Lucille Korell, Savannah; James Brashear, Holden, Kan.; Matie Evans and Anna Laura Brashear, Parnell; great grandchildren are Bill Adery and Ruth Anna Korell, St. Joseph.

U. S. Destroyer Aids Victims of a Mob

Women and Children Are Taken to Safety When Chinese Nationalists Riot at Wuhu.

Shanghai, March 9.—British reports from Wuhu today said a United States destroyer assisted in the evacuation of women and children when a Chinese mob of rioters looted the customs house and customs club.

Women and children were evacuated, the report said, aboard the British steamer Butoo. The rioting was believed to have been caused by reliable reports that the Cantonese Nationalists had suffered a reverse at Taitingfu and also by distrust between the Cantonese and Marshal Chen Taio Chuen, governor of Anhui province, who recently announced his adherence to the southern cause.

Join Northern Soldiers.

Peking, March 9.—A detachment of troops of Chang Tso-Lin, which was attacked by General Chin Yu-Nao, rebellious commander, succeeded today in crossing the Yellow river and joining 40,000 northern soldiers awaiting an opportunity to retake Hankow.

May Mobolize Volunteers.

London, March 9.—An urgent order for mobilization of the Shanghai volunteers was issued last night, the Morning Post correspondent there reported today.

Authorities did not disclose the reason for the call, the dispatch said.

Cantonese troops were reported to have made their way in Soochow and Chekiang, hoping to destroy property on the Nanking-Shanghai railway and cripple communication between the two cities, the correspondent said, adding that credence was given the reports, because similar attempts had been made near Shanghai.

Last of Collector's Tax Books Are Viewed

Settlement Is Made by Emmett Bartram, Polk Township Collector—Figures Not Available.

The last of the 1926 tax settlements were made today when the County court viewed the books of Nodaway, Polk, Washington and White Cloud townships, and settlements were made with all except Pearl McLaughlin of Nodaway. She was sent back for further collections and will report Monday with the collectors of Hopkins and Hughes townships.

The figures of the Polk township books of Emmett Bartram and M. E. Laughlin of Washington were not available late this afternoon.

The figures of the other collectors were:

W. I. Burns, Independence township, $40,020 collected from $43,576.91 charged on the books, leaving $3,337.34 delinquent.

G. E. Ingels, Union township, $27,000 collected out of 27,377,31 charged, leaving $350 delinquent.

J. O. Bolin, White Cloud township, $28,900 collected of the $29,549 extended on the tax books, leaving $595.99 delinquent.

Salary Change Engrossed.

Jefferson City, March 9.—A proposed change in the periods for holding sessions of the general assembly in Missouri and the amount of salaries paid the members is on its way to accomplishment in the engrossment by the senate of a proposed constitutional amendment, which incorporates the changes.

The pay of the legislators would be fixed at $1,000 for each biennial period in which a regular session occurs and $1,500 for the biennial period in which a revision session is held, under the provisions of the amendment. The fiscal period of the legislature would be from January to July.

Clerk hire in the aggregate under the amendment is limited to $400 per day in the house and $300 for the senate. At revising sessions the clerk hire is limited to $200 per day in the house and $150 per day in the senate.

Britain to Wait For Limitation Conference

England's New Fighting Ships Not To Be Built Until Three-Power Naval Meet Is Over.

London, March 9.—President Coolidge's desire for three-power naval limitation conference already is having its effect here.

First Lord of the Admiralty W. C. Bridgeman told the House of Commons today that Great Britain would not lay keels for new fighting ships in 1927 until late in the year, after the result of the proposed conference, between Britain, the United States and Japan, had become known.

Bridgeman said work on ships already under construction would be continued at the same speed as though no naval conference had been suggested and as though Great Britain had not accepted the invitation, but it was not intended to lay down any new vessel of the 1927 building program until late in the year.

Prize Winner Too Happy to Give Name

Moscow, March 9.—A workman who was so excited at winning 100,000 roubles in the latest state lottery that he surrendered his ticket and let himself be carried off by cheering friends before he gave the bank clerk his name, is being sought by lottery officials.

He was required to give up his ticket for verification and wait three days for his money but he dashed away in high spirits before receiving a receipt for his ticket. The prize is about $50,000.

BILLY EVANS Says

Huggins Is Superstitious.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Four years ago the New York Yankees came to St. Petersburg to train. They immediatedly started to win American League pennants. That winter Miller Huggins became a resident of St. Petersburg. I know he is crazy about the city now. Perhaps he was merely playing a hunch then.

Ball players are a mighty superstitious lot and managers come under the same heading. I am inclined to think that Miller's first reaaction was that St. Petersburg was lucky for him, since he won a pennant the first year his team trained there.

Anyway, Huggins is now one of the leading citizens; his name is in the city directory; he has a telephone number; the cops all salute him as he passes by, and he numbers the mayor as his best friend.

Incidentally, I might add that St. Petersburg has been lucky for him in other than baseball ventures. He is one of those who have made a lot of money out of real estate. There are several people in Florida who haven't.

Bans Golf In Spring Training.

Ran into Huggins on the street the day before the arrival of his athletes. Had a most interesting chat with him. Miller Huggins is one of the smartest men in baseball. He knows his stuff.

A little incident that cropped out during our conversation is typical of his methods.

Huggins like golf. He plays plenty of it during the winter months. However, he is of the opinion there is nothing in common between golf and baseball.

"This is my last day of golf," he said, as we parted company. "I want to get in at least 36 holes today."

Pressed for an explanation as to the last-day stuff, he replied:

"I put up the bars up on golf during the spring training, and I don't care to indulge in any recreation I deny my players."

Great Booster For Florida.

Huggins is a great booster for St. Petersburg and Florida. You know he expressed his true feelings on the subject, for he has nothing to sell.

He doesn't take seriously the setback of last year, due to the bursting of the real estate bubble on the frenzied-finance scale and the hurricane that visited the east coast.

"You can't beat the climate," says Huggins, and I firmly agree with him on that point. "The state may have its faults, but the climate is not one of them." Then to illustrate his point, he tells this story:

"Two Irishmen, seeing Niagara Falls for the first time, marveled at the amount of water that kept passing over the falls. Said one of them:

"'Just think, Mike, there is no way of stopping it.'

"It's the same way with the sun in Florida," said Huggins, drawing his parallel; "you just can't keep it from shining. So long as it continues, the success of Florida is assured."

After listening to Miller Huggins' disclosure on Florida, I am sure he could be just as successful a realtor as he is a manager, provided he had a leaning that way.

Another Entry in Basketball Tourney

Rock Port to Play in Class A.—17 Teams In Class B Make Preliminary Game Necessary.

One more entry has been received for the Northwest Missouri High School Basketball Tournament, which will start at the State Teachers College tomorrow afternoon. An entry from Rock Port, bearing the correct post mark, arrived at the College this morning. This team will replace Burlington Junction in Class A, and it makes the total entry list now at thirty-three.

Sixteen teams will be in Class A and seventeen in Class B of the tournament. This means that two teams in Class B will have to play a preliminary game to the opening round of the tournament. This game will be played at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Drawing for places in the tournament will take place at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Most of the teams will arrive tomorrow morning by automobile, although several have indicated that they will arrive in Maryville this afternoon and tonight.

Marshall—Under the will of Dr. U. B. Wingfield, a portion of his estate is to be used for the erection of a public library here.

Butler—The Bates County Court has ordered a number of improvements of the city square here. Among them is the rounding of the corners of the courthouse yard.
